I was a wanna-be computer aficionado -
just like you (if you're still with me).

I had some business material that demanded speed,
I had some close relatives and friends who hounded me to keep them informed,
And I also saw my grandchildren comfortable
doing all these things.

But I couldn't imagine myself somehow getting a handle on cyberspace and all the rest.
Until Tamir Basin came my way (through a friend).

This was not so long ago, and I admit that I don't yet compete with the kids.
But I'm coping, and learning all the time -
it's actually exciting and challenging.

So I gladly recommend Tamir to anyone who needs
or wants to join the Computer Generation.
He is quiet and helpful, understanding,
compassionate and professional.
